The Académie Internationale de Droit Comparé (AIDC) / International Academy of Comparative Law (IACL), founded in 1924, holds its centenary 22nd General Congress from 28 September to 2 October 2026 at Humboldt University Berlin. The programme comprises numerous panels addressing both established specialised topics and pressing foundational questions surrounding democracy, the rule of law, and digitalisation. Particular emphasis is placed on the role of (comparative) law in a profoundly pluralistic world. A dedicated workshop on legal counselling as transnational rule-setting bridges academic scholarship and legal practice, examining private rulemaking by law firms, industry associations, and standard-setting bodies in international business law. The congress closes with a high-level panel convening representatives of regional, national and supranational courts to discuss their shared global responsibilities in safeguarding legal resilience.

* Professor Dr. Dr. Dr. h.c. Stefan Grundmann, LL.M. (Berkeley), is the Congress Organiser and Professor of Private and Business Law at Humboldt University.
